Potomac State College of WVU Gets Accreditation By NCA

The accreditation of Potomac State College of West Virginia University as an Associate degree-granting institution has been continued, according to Dean A.G. Slonaker.

Official announcement was received in a letter from Norman Burns, Director of the Commission on Institutions of High Education, North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. He said that the action of the Commission on July 25 was based upon the evaluators' report and the discussions before the Committees of the Commission at the meeting in Chicago.

Accompanying Dr. Slonaker to the Chicago meeting was David G. Nuzum who was director of the self study and also coordinator of the visit by the North Central Committee to the campus in early April.

Newsletter Financed By Alumni Dues

Kenneth F. Haines '50, secretary-treasurer of the Alumni Association, reminds you that the cost of printing and mailing the ALUMNI NEWSLETTER is paid through your alumni dues—NOT by the college.

Expenses for each edition exceed $1,000. They include typesetting and printing of 7,000 copies, envelopes, third class postage, payment for address changes, and inserts such as Homecoming or Foundation brochures.

Each alumnus is urged to send his dues for 1974-75 to the Alumni Office immediately. Dues are $2.50 for an individual or $4.00 where both husband and wife are alumni. Prompt action will insure continued publication of the NEWSLETTER.

Mishap Claims Mrs. Lough And Mrs Stanhagen

Two well-known Keyser women, whose names were synonymous with Potomac State College and who were known to hundreds of alumni, were killed May 25 in a two-car collision in Preston County.

The victims were Mrs. Viola (Umstot) Lough, 70, and Mrs. Gertrude (South) Stanhagen, 63, both retirees of the college.

Mrs. Lough was the widow of Dana G. (Horse) Lough, who was athletic director and head coach of football and basketball at the college for 35 years prior to retiring in 1970. He died June 1, 1973.

Mrs. Stanhagen was the widow of John W. (Sleepy) Stanhagen, also a retired staff member of Potomac State, having managed the Student Union for a number of years prior to his death on May 18, 1973.

With Mrs. Stanhagen driving, the two women had left Keyser on the morning of May 25, going to Morgantown, to visit Coach Lough's grave in Beverly Hills Cemetery. They visited for an hour with Mrs. Ward Haines in Morgantown, prior to heading for Deep Creek Lake where they planned to spend the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Boone Nuce of the Washington area. Mrs. Nuce is the former Miss Madge McClung, former physical education instructor at the college.

They were traveling West Virginia Route 7 toward Oakland, Md., when the head-on collision occurred at 3:10 p.m. two-tenths of a mile east of Reedsville, between Masontown and Kingwood.

The other automobile, operated by Carl Benson, Shinnston, failed to negotiate a left-hand curve and as it came back onto the roadway it crashed head-on at an angle into the Stanhagen vehicle, a 1973 Maverick. Benson was admitted to WVU Hospital in Morgantown and a passenger in his car, Larry Spangler, Kingwood, was admitted to Preston Memorial Hospital, Kingwood.

Mrs. Stanhagen was pinned in the car and a hydraulic jack was used to extricate her; she was pronounced dead at the scene.

Mrs. Lough was removed quickly from the wreckage but died enroute to University Hospital.

TWO RETIREES KILLED

Both bodies were taken to the Markwood Funeral Home in Keyser. Mass of the Resurrection was sung for Mrs. Stanhagen on May 29 at the Church of the Assumption in Keyser with burial following in Potomac Memorial Gardens. Services for Mrs. Lough were held later in the day at the funeral home. Interment was in Beverly Hills Cemetery, Morgantown.

A native of Keyser, Mrs. Lough was the daughter of Mrs. Alice (Reed) Umstot, a patient at Hopemont State Hospital, and the late William T. Umstot. She retired in the spring of 1970 as dietitian at Potomac State, a post she had held since 1943.

She attended Potomac State, Fairmont State, and Marshall University where she majored in home economics. Before coming to Potomac State in 1935 with her husband she taught four years in the schools of Preston County and for one year in Chesapeake, Ohio.

Her work at the college entailed ordering large quantities of food, planning menus, managing a corps of staff workers (both regulars and students), catering to special diets, and meeting the demands of special luncheons and dinners for groups from both on and off campus.

Mrs. Lough was active with the Potomac Valley Chapter, National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Presbyterian Church. She was also a member of Sigma Sigma Sorority and had been a member of the Keyser Woman's Club.

Mrs. Stanhagen, a native of Waynesburg, Pa., was the daughter of the late S. Ed and Sue (Brant) South.

At the time of her retirement in February, 1973, Mrs. Stanhagen was probably the only person on campus who could make the claim that the period of her employment spanned the careers of all the chief officers who had been with the junior college.

She began her career with the college in the fall of 1935 as secretary to President Joseph W. Stayman, remaining as secretary when Dr. Ernest E. Church became the college's second president in 1936.

The title of Administrative Assistant was given to her in 1962, and she continued to serve in that capacity with President Church until his resignation in 1964. She next served as administrative assistant to Dr. Todd H. Bullard, the third president, until 1968, when she

College Gets NCA Accreditation

A letter, indicating that Potomac State College of West Virginia University has again been accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, wins the approval of Dean A.G. Slonaker and Prof. David G. Nuzum who attended a committee meeting in Chicago in July.

Prof. Nuzum was director of the self study and also coordinator of the campus visit made by the evaluation committee in early April.

accepted the position of administrative assistant to Prof. David G. Nuzum, director of college planning and community services, a post she held to retirement which ended a total of almost 38 years of service to this institution.

Among her many duties were arrangements for housing for students, both on and off campus, which sometimes entailed checking off-campus facilities. Also, being the only qualified Notary on campus gave her other special duties.

She moved to Morgantown at an early age with her family and graduated from Morgantown High School. She attended WVU where she was a member of Alpha Xi Delta Sorority.

A member of the Church of the Assumption, she formerly was active with AAUW and the Keyser Woman's Club, being secretary of the latter for a year.

Survivors include a brother, Charley South, of Kirby, Pa., and four sisters: Miss Genevieve A. South, Miss Mary Lee South, and Miss Elizabeth South, all of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Frances Sadtler, of Southport, Conn.

Total Enrollment For Fall Term May Reach 800

Over 300 new freshmen are expected to swell enrollment figures to near the 800 mark for the 1974-75 term.

This is based on anticipated figures released to the Alumni Newsletter staff prior to the opening of school on August 25.

Based on a preliminary report, 215 students had pre-registered at the close of school; 338 new freshmen were expected; 96 night students were anticipated; 74 off-campus students, and 73 special students for an overall headcount of 796.

Dean A.G. Slonaker explained that these figures could vary before the actual opening of school but that all dormitory space on campus had been taken and many students were seeking housing elsewhere in the city.

He stressed that improved relations with West Virginia University had resulted in more fruitful recruitment efforts, as well as improvement to the grounds and public buildings.

WVU gave $12,000 for the tennis courts; parking lot improvement and Davis Hall renovations are part of the capital improvements budget. Air conditioning of the Student Union was held up temporarily because of plans having to be approved in Charleston but work is expected to be done sometime this fall.

In addition to the regular campus curriculum, four classes have been scheduled to be offered to seniors and adults at four area schools. These courses may be taken and then held in escrow by those planning to attend Potomac State at a later date. Instructors will be Mrs. Betsy Martin who will teach English at Ridgeley and Fort Ashby; Prof. Nancy Oates who will teach biology at Hampshire High and Prof. Willa Cather, English at Moorefield.

programs that will help students once they come to Potomac State. It will be an "adjusted" program to meet the needs of the individuals and will improve retention.

This is a federal program that is devised for developing institutions that need infusion of funds in order to grow and develop.

It has been established as a bilateral agreement with WVU with Dr. John Andes as liaison between the two institutions.

Potomac State Given $100,000 In Title III Funds

Approval of $100,000 in Title III funds will enable Potomac State College to do a more effective job of recruiting students in the area it draws from, according to David G. Nuzum, coordinator of the program, who said that special attention will be given to dropouts, stop-outs, housewives, and veterans.

The additional money will permit the college to continue the office of Institutional Research, as well as the audio-visual program which includes multimedia student learning resources to implement classroom presentation. It will also enable the college to establish a full-time public relations office and to hire a placement and career education officer who will also serve as an assistant in financial aids. The funds will also help to provide for an additional faculty secretary.

With this grant the college will concentrate on providing

In reviewing the 1973-74 activities, Watson indicated that over $1,700 in athletic scholarships was raised for football and basketball scholarships: at least $2,700 will be provided for the 1974 school year; and it is anticipated that baseball will be included in scholarships to be awarded this year.

Highlight of his report concerned the Coastal Conference All-Star Football Game, played last November 24, and marking the first junior college all-star game ever played in the United States.

This outstanding and financially successful game, preceded by a banquet on November 23, with All-American and All-Pro Sam Huff as principal speaker, featured the best players in the seven-member Coastal Conference. Coaches and scouts from over 80 colleges, from as far west as the University of Nebraska, attended the game, which was won by the South squad 13-6.

Watson also said that plans for the second All-Star game are progressing and the banquet will be held on November 29 with the night game following on Saturday, November 30.

Dr. Courier said his main goal will be to increase membership and to provide more funds for athletic scholarships.

Cat Club membership is open to all who desire to promote athletic programs at Potomac State. Contributions (tax deductible) may be sent to the Cat Club, Box 365, Keyser, WV., 26726.

Lough Memorial Scholarship Fund to also commemorate the coach's wife, who served some 30 years as college dietitian.

Contributions to the scholarship fund have now reached $3,600 as gifts continue to be received in the Alumni Office. Dr. Ernest E. Church, chairman of the Lough Memorial Committee, expressed the hope recently that contributions would at least reach the $5,000 level, a figure which would permit the awarding of at least a $300 a year scholarship in memory of the coach and his wife.

Checks should be drawn to the Lough Memorial Scholarship Fund and may be mailed to the Alumni Office.
